Recently the defense program has placed new responsibilities on the schools. One of these is to teach young people that Democracy is not an inheritance. Democracy is "a Faith, a code of values, a way of life that each generation must create for itself." You are forging democracy out of the struggles, successes, and failures of your school life; in developing intellectual independence, in finding time to be charming and interesting as well as efficient, in developing personal talents, and in shaping a code by which your interests are adjusted to those of others.
