A Moment of Contemplation

Finally, the time has come for the closing of twelve grades of school and actually the end of one phase of life.

Although some may disagree, school has served its purpose and that is to educate. Probably the most useful lesson of all is derived from the chance to grow up with many types of people with many types of backgrounds. From this we learn how to get along and to compromise.

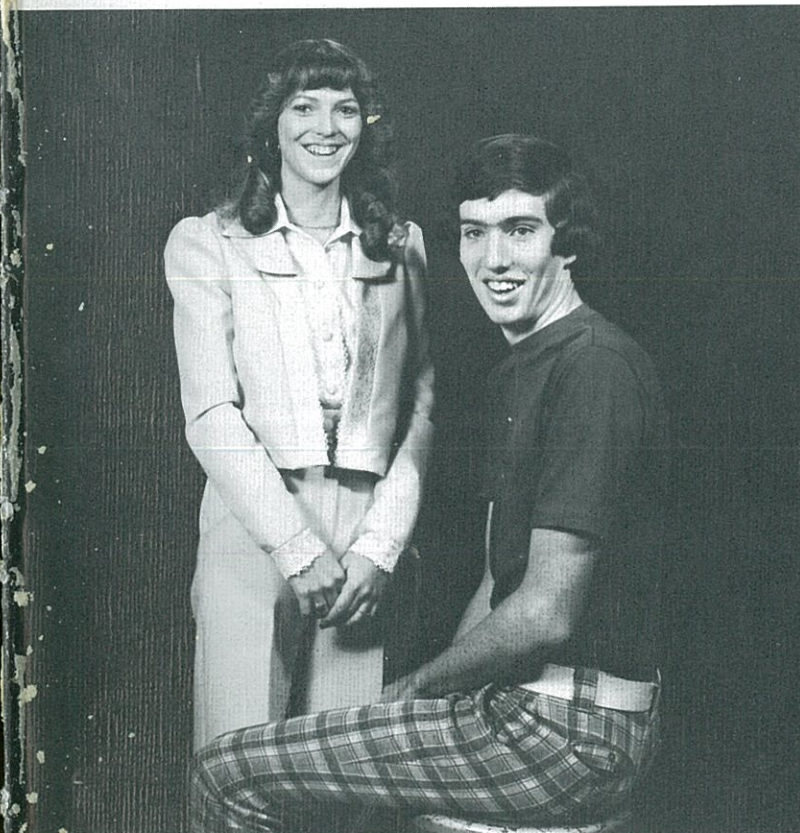

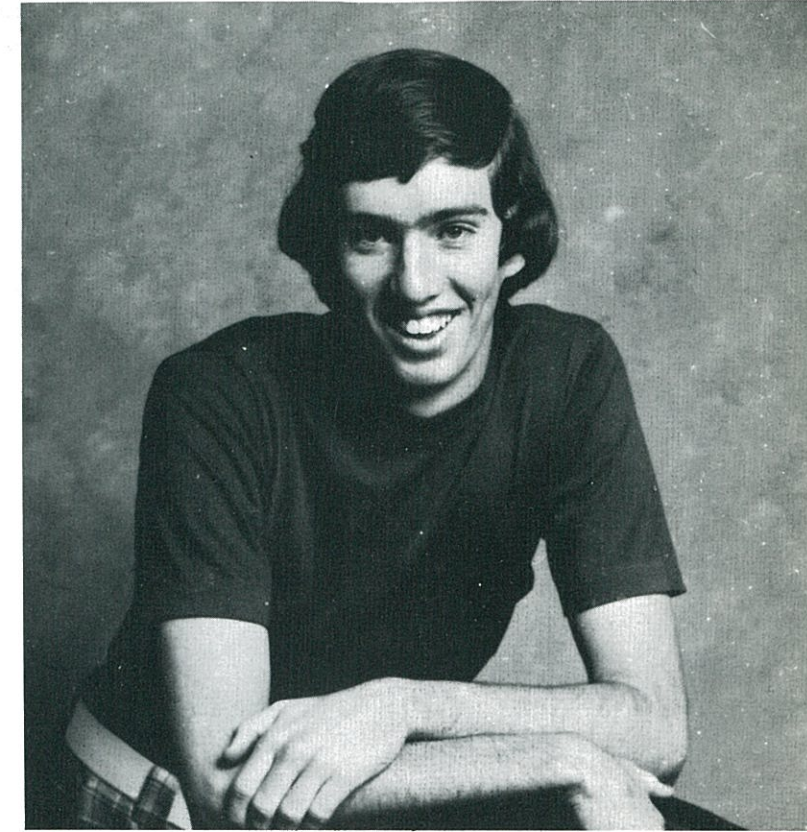

Whether the feelings toward school are good or bad, school has undoubtedly shaped our whole concept of life.

As the seniors have said:
Do not walk behind me;
I may not want to lead.
Do not walk in front of me;
I may not wish to follow.
Just walk beside me and be my friend.
