

REMEMBER the time this year you took for work. Whoever said that work is honorable was certainly right. You worked on the newspaper, the annual, in the One Act Play, in D.E., I.C.T., Auto Mechanics. Sometimes you even worked around your own Home. Work is the price of success.

REMEMBER the time this year you took to read. You read "Sports Illustrated," "Mad," "Hot Rod," "Seventeen," "To Kill A Mockingbird," and a thousand and one other things. Reading is the foundation of Knowledge.

REMEMBER the time this year you took to think. You thought about cars, girls, guys, how you could lose 10 pounds, how you could be "cool" passing, failing, the presidential election, and your inner self. Thinking is the source of power.
