

REMEMBER the time you took this year to laugh. You laughed at the naivete of the freshmen. You laughed at the way you looked with a new hair cut. You laughed at how frightened you were over final exams. You laughed at your fear of graduation. You laughed at your bad case of pre-game jitters. Laughing is the singing that helps lighten life's load.

REMEMBER the time this year you took to dream. You dreamed you were a six foot, three inch, 195 pound hulk of muscle. You dreamed you were Miss Body Beautiful. You dreamed of winning state in---everything--- You dreamed of graduation, and college, and marriage, and wealth, and happiness. Dreaming hitches the soul to the stars.

