Remember the classes? Were they too long or too hard? Some were fun all the time; others fun some of the time; and someone might say some were absolutely awful all the time! Whatever the case may be, they might have lacked appeal but they did deserve an effort — from which each of us could benefit.

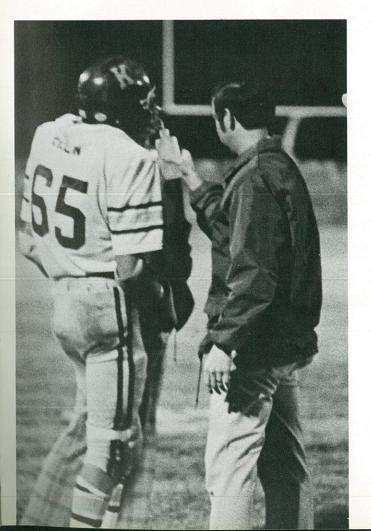

Remember the people? Friends, enemies, teachers, and whoever else there might have been. A certain class might not have been the same without that certain student who loved to have fun. Or what about the problem that a teacher helped you solve — because that teacher really cared about you? And don't forget the athlete who scored the winning point, simply because he cared, really cared.
