

Many times we thought no one could be more unsympathetic or mean than a teacher. Our views often change, however, as we grow older and more mature and are able to realize that the faculty was only trying to prepare us for the world outside the classroom walls.

The Sandstorm also created many friendships. To make the Sandstorm a truly great yearbook, the Sandstorm staff had to meet people and communicate with them.

Members of the student body and staff members often found that they had many common interests and ideas. Friendships could not help but grow after that. The Sandstorm took a lot of work and teamwork. Not just from the staff but from the entire student body. Nothing could have been accomplished without everyone's cooperation.