

Seniors Find Time To Study & Play

Dianna Juarez is busy at work on her DE job at Gibsons.

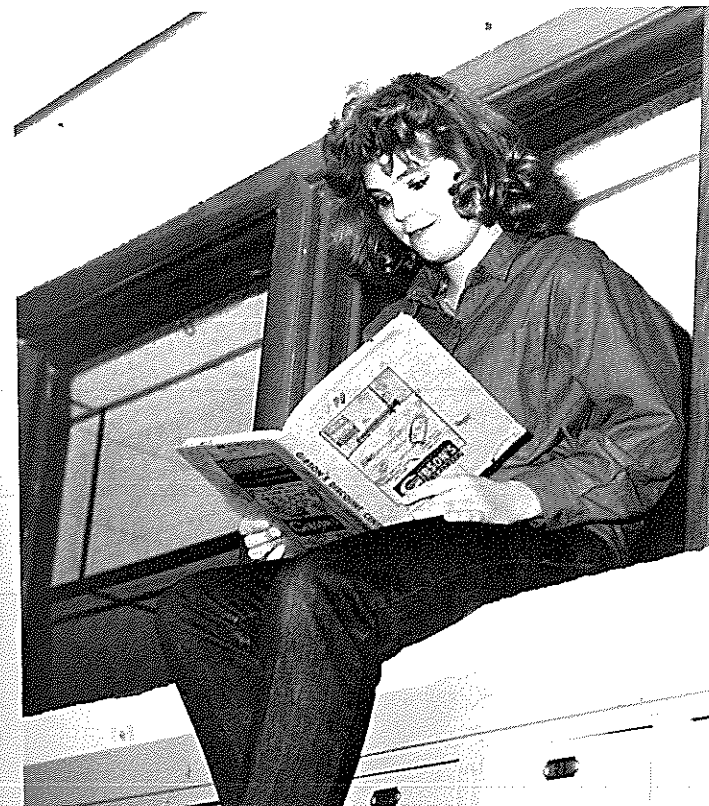

Senior class officers include President George Martinez, Vice President Jeff Brown, Secretary Daryle Galindo and Parliamentarian Jimmy Awbrey.

Amy Lujan shows her love for school as she enthusiastically does her homework.

Is there a fire? Or does Mike Prince prefer to use the rail rather than the steps?

No matter where she is, Lisa Carlisle still finds time to crack her books and study.

George Martinez could be a future doctor if he continues to practice in this manner.

The Class of 1987 made its mark both in the classroom and on other fields of endeavor.

While some students worked hard in English, science and math, others found that hard work in art, automechanics, music, drama, photojournalism and other extracurricular classes also provided much-needed stimulation.

Often, boys seemed to need a little help with their studies — and they found just the right helper, a girl.

More than once, boys were called on to help some stranded girl start her car in the parking lot, too.

Rosa Ramos and Norma Cordova participate in the very rare activity of playing in the snow.
