

One Act Play: 'Requiem'

Performing in "Requiem" were Geoffrey Brockman, Scot Tidwell, Karen Pass, Elizabeth Kennelly, Mary Batchelor, Travis Peeler, Brandon Davis, Grant Helmer, Eva Ebbeson, Elyse Coats, Billy Pass, Felicia Wingrove, Sarina Palmer, SEATED Michael Carlisle, Kala Palmer, Clary Cutrell, Andrea Lowe.

"Requiem" is a play about war. With a coffin as its only true prop, it makes an abstract comment on the horror and frivolity of war. The story is of a mother, whose husband is killed on the way home from war. Before she has time to grieve, however, two of her four young children are drafted. Throughout the play there is a constant struggle between the memory of, and desire for peace and the reality and inevitability of war.

"I am extremely proud of this cast. They took a very difficult play and made it work. Although we will not be advancing, the cast members were winners. They touched the audience and made them feel compassion for someone less fortunate. Through this play, these cast members became "whole" people — able to laugh, hurt, shed some tears and make us feel hope for mankind.

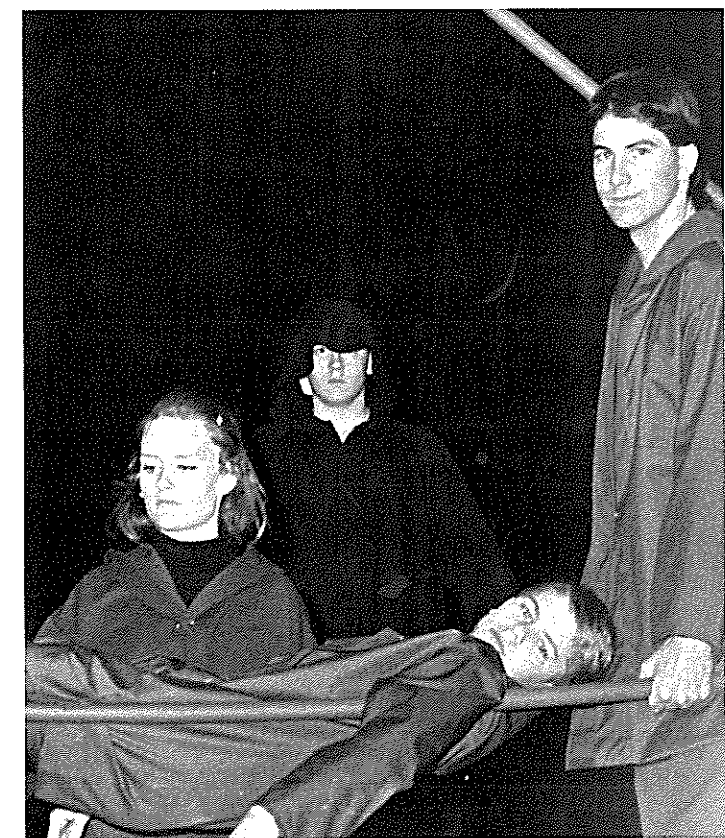

Clary Cutrell and Brandon Davis performing a very emotional scene from the play.

The chorus, consisting of Karen Pass, Elizabeth Kennelly, Mary Batchelor, Sarina Palmer, Felicia Wingrove, and Elyse Coats surround Clary Cutrell, Kala Palmer, Andrea Lowe, and Michael Carlisle. Clary Cutrell and Andrea Lowe received awards for their performances. Clary Cutrell was awarded Best Actress of 6AAA District and Andrea Lowe received Honorable Mention.

Demonstrating her award-winning ability, Clary Cutrell pleads with Brandon Davis not to take her children.

A death scene was played by Billy Pass, Eva Ebbeson, Grant Helmer, and Travis Peeler.