

HIGH SCHOOL PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

We would all do well to be able to say, along with Tennyson's Ulysses, "I am a part of all that I have met." Considering ourselves a part or fraction of the whole, we should realize that we must all be reduced to a common denominator before we attain any deserved degree of success. This great common denominator is WORK. We expect students to leave the Wink Public Schools well fitted to take their place in an organized society. This end may be attained only through serious endeavor on the part of the individual student.

My message, then, to the students of Wink High School, is to do well the job before you, appropriating the best to be a part of your life's equipment.

ELEMENTARY PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

It has been said that things which will not amount to something ten years from now, amount to but very little now. The problems which we solve today will be mere incidents tomorrow. Each of us is a pilot of his own destiny. We can steer toward a goal and accomplish things, or we can drift about while others go ahead. An honest and ambitious person is hard to stop, but there is no demand for self-sympathizing loafers.
