

A class in English literature, studying "Macbeth" the studidisc way.

Language

The English department offers courses in literature and in grammar. The definite aim in the study of all literature is to teach the student the appreciation of all good literature. The main objective in the teaching of grammar is to give the student a usable knowledge of all spoken and written discourse. Since literature is the best recorded thoughts of the great minds of all ages, and since grammar is the fundamental basis of all discourse, each student in Wink High School is required to study English.

Bettye Travis, M. A.
English

Mrs. B. C. Henderson, B. A.
English, Dramatics

The cast of "The Truth About Christmas."

In an effort to further the interest in and deepen the appreciation for dramatic art, the members of the Dramatic Club have, this year, taken part in several one-act plays. In this work the club has found both pleasure and profit and has presented several plays for the entire student body.

Arts

Journalism--eleven industrious students work together to put out a semi-weekly Whirlwind, the newspaper publication of the Wink Public Schools. The class this year made a good showing at the Southwestern High School Press Convention, where it took three first places and two second places out of eight contests.

Journalism Class

Mary Roach, M.A.
Spanish
English I and II

W. W. Lott, M.A.
Journalism
Junior High English

This is a class in Spanish II. The Spanish department strives to give the students enough knowledge of the subject to enable them to meet college requirements. The customs, habits, songs, religion, and political beliefs of Spanish speaking people are studied.