SUPERINTENDENT'S MESSAGE

To my way of thinking the hope of America as well as the entire world lies in its schools and churches together with their allied organizations. Through these institutions we must teach people how to live together in "One World". No misconceived idea of "realism" should induce us to ignore this living hope or abate in its pursuit. Schools still face a challenging problem in the shortage of teachers. Until teaching is held in the proper regard, this shortage will continue to exist. My earnest desire is to have the people of this country awake to their responsibility to its youth.
