

B. C. Henderson
High School Principal

As we come to the close of another school year, I have a feeling of satisfaction, in that, not only has knowledge been acquired, but proper attitudes and ideals, which are so essential in the welfare and happiness of an individual, are well in the making.

My thought then, to the students of Wink High School, is to seek the best, the worthy things of life, and become a part of all you have encountered.

William Ernest Henley has written, "I am the master of my fate, I am the captain of my soul." What we will be tomorrow is determined by what we are doing today, yet God has given each of us the power to shape his own destiny. May we realize the importance of applying ourselves diligently today so that we will be better prepared for tomorrow.
