

Wink Citizens identify with football. Little boys practice throwing passes before they practice reading, and little girls can spell "V-I-C-T-O-R-Y" before they spell their names. Each is a potential halfback or cheerleader. Disappointments occur, but those who succeed receive the applause of the school and community. Each team is unique, but, win or lose, the game goes on to be recorded as part of a proud tradition.

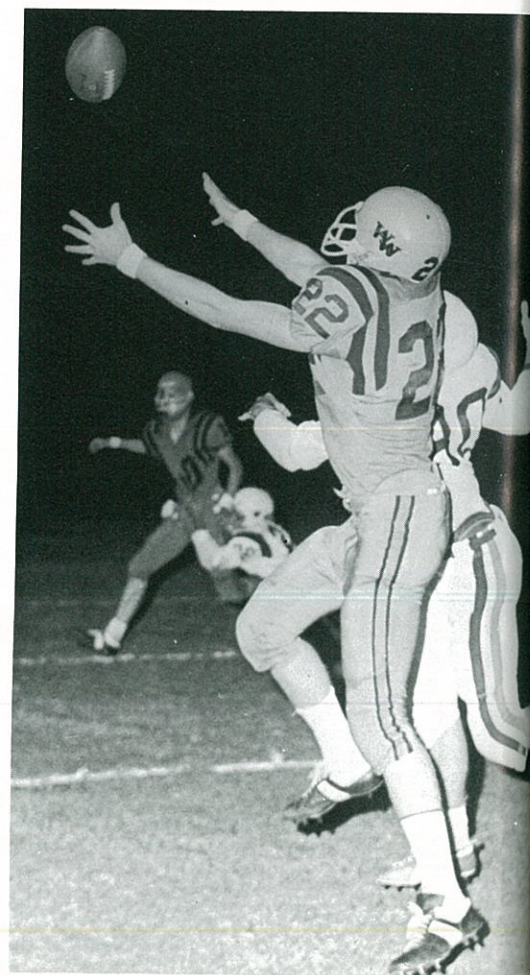

Maybe next time ---

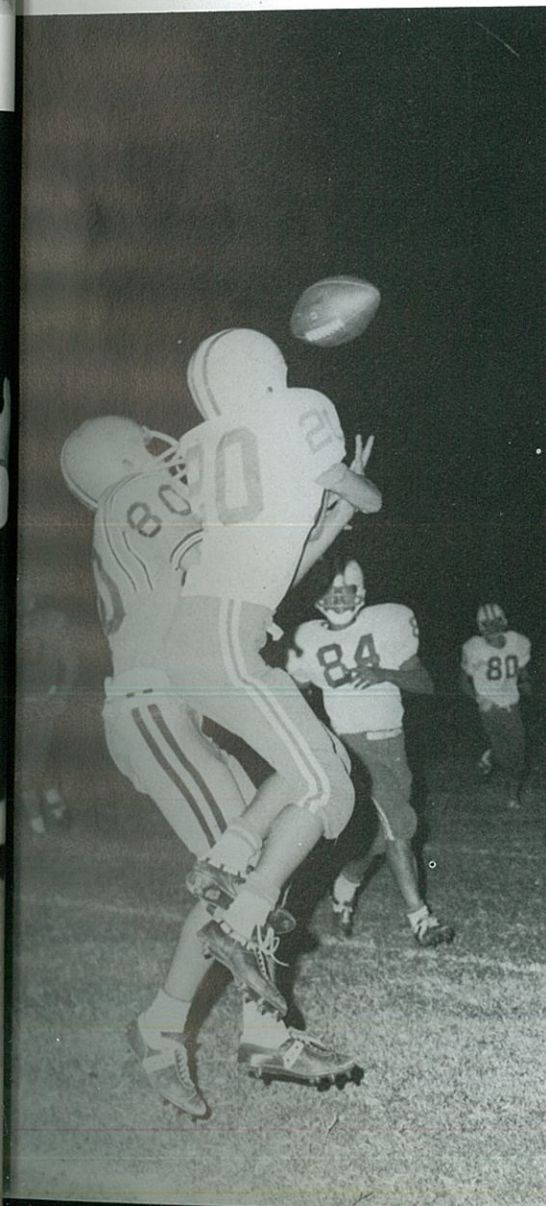

One against the world?

Wally sweeps the end

Nice pass, Bruce!

OOPS!

"They also serve who only stand and wait!"