

During September, the rains came pouring down; flooding most of Central U.S. We, here at Wink, received around seven inches.

Radiation from the Chernobyl power plant had all of Europe in a scare. The countries affected by the radiation included Italy, Great Britain, West Germany, and Japan.

The New York Mets beat the Boston Red Sox to win the World Series. The series went to the wire, with the Mets finally winning 4 games to 3.

America captured a Soviet spy, Gennadi Zakharov. A week later, U.S.'s Nicholas Daniloff was falsely accused of spying in Russia. This incident eventually led to the exchange of "spies".

Len Bias, an up-and-coming basketball star who had been drafted by his dream team, the Boston Celtics, died of a cocaine-induced heart-attack on June 19, 1986. Eight days later, Don Rogers of the Cleveland Browns also died because of cocaine. "On a day the children will mourn," said Reverend Jesse Jackson at Bias's funeral, "I hope they learn."

Arms are sold illegally to Iran. Some say that the scandal that followed the sale, was President Reagan's downfall.

A fire at the Dupont Plaza in Puerto Rico left close to one-hundred people dead. The suspicious fire was thought to be started by arson.

The Voyager, a small aircraft just big enough for two people, was the first airplane to fly completely around the world without a stop. The trip took nine days.

The price of oil plunged, causing many Texans to start hunting for more work. In our area, several businesses closed as a result of this oil slump.

Bill Clements won back the governorship from Mark White. Some looked at this as a blessing, but others say that Bill Clements will be no better for the state.

The New York Giants won Superbowl XXI. The final score was 39 to 20. They defeated the Denver Broncos to become the world champions of football.

New News

Around the world news is hitting the headlines that affects us here at Wink. At the end of every year, whether it be the end of the school year, or just the end of the year, it seems like people are always thinking back on some of the events that happened over the year.

That's what this page is for. Now, when you start talking about events of the year, you can just pull out your yearbook, and have a ready recollection of all the events that shook the world.

Wink High School got a new superintendent this year. John Sollis was hired after Frank Barton retired, leaving this school after many years of good service.

On the Fourth of July, many people went to New York to see the fireworks celebrating the Statue of Liberty's 100th birthday. The celebration lasted for twenty-eight minutes.