

Everlasting Light

The Wink-Loving Independent School System has been successful for many years because of the people in our administration. The administration consists of a board, who are elected officials representing the citizens; the superintendent, who oversees and is in charge of our school; the principals, who are the chief executive officers; the secretaries, who keep up with all the paper work; and the people who work in the tax office.

They're all dedicated to making Wink a better school for today's youth. The board even takes time out from their home life to come to board meetings each month to make decisions which make our school work and run smoothly. Some people don't realize how fortunate their children are to be able to attend Wink schools. The administration works together to make the Wink School the best in the area.

Mr. Sollis keeps our school running smoothly. He has been a great asset to our school because he always looks out for students and does what's best for them.

Mr. Watts is working hard on keeping everything in line in the elementary. He has been elementary principal for three years.

Mrs. Dorman keeps everything in line in the administration offices. She is dedicated to making our school the best possible.

Mrs. Jacobsen is always busy copying papers for the teachers. She has worked as High School secretary for nine years now.

Mrs. Bolf is always willing to lend a helping hand. She has done a great job as Elementary secretary.

Mr. Dodd lays back and is taking it easy in his office. He has worked at Wink Schools for many years and knows his job well.

The board works into the night at the monthly board meeting. The dedication of their time helps make Wink School a success.

The members of the board take a break during their board meeting. Sitting are Greg Tredwell, Mike Jones; vice president, Peggy Tredwell; secretary, standing Bill Beckham, president, Gene Gray, Jesse Abila, and Renee Bounds.

Mrs. Bryan and Mrs. Tomson work hard to keep up with the school's taxes. They both attended required classes for certification as Tax Assessor Collectors during the year.

Mrs. Warren is Mr. Sollis's secretary. She always had a smile for people entering the administration building.
