

Don't Rain On My Parade.

As umbrella-covered candidates for 1991 queen walked towards the home crowd, a steady mist fell Homecoming night. Aside from everyone getting wet, the rain failed to dampen spirits. Seniors Angie Adams, Sami Jones, and Jessica Martinez, who were selected by popular student vote, were flanked by varsity team members as they were presented during pre-game ceremonies. Board President Bill Beckham presented flowers and crown to winner Angie Adams.

Student Council sparked spirit with "Theme Week" and "Kiss a Pig" contest. Students and faculty livened up the school by wearing hats, shades, orange and black socks, inside-out clothes and by dressing as twins. All week every teacher was terrified about who would end up kissing the pig. Coach Paula Lockhart was the lucky one . . . but the pep rally crowd squealed as the "pig" turned out to be a caged, pink-

Starting something new, the players lining their helmets on the field played a role in the Homecoming March.

Sophomore Mike Miranda gets into defensive action against Jal.

snoured football. Thursday night friends and family gathered for an enthusiastic community pep rally to get the players ready for Friday.

Unfortunately Wink lost to Jal's Panthers

Varsity cheerleaders boost enthusiasm while the band plays.

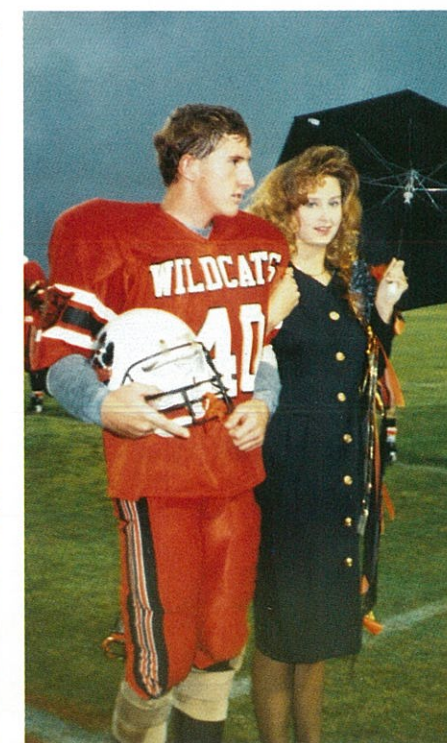

35-7. Jal had 408 yards and Wink gained 192 yards. "I felt tremendous pressure because of the Exes and the traditions in the stands," Wayne Davis said.

Homecoming Queen candidates smile with excitement while watching the game.

Senior Sami Jones escorted by Sophomore Shane Haynes.

Senior Angie Adams escorted by Freshman Wayne Gunn.

Senior Jessica Martinez escorted by Sophomore Mike Miranda.