

PURDUE

Academics

Acting out the Canterbury Tales, these seniors take a break from their pilgrimage to pose for a picture.

Past Present Future

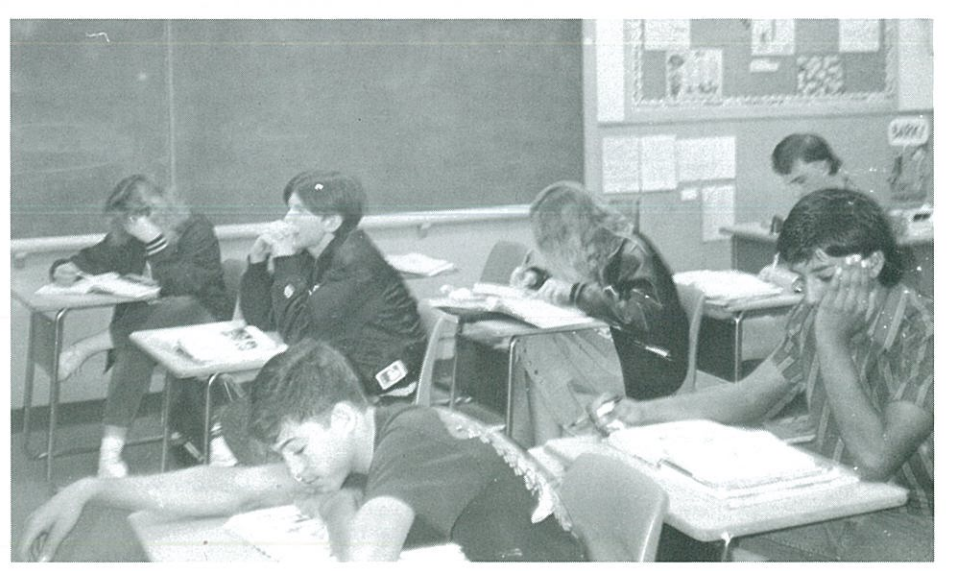

Learning Spanish, English, and history exposes students to their cultural background. They study the history of the world, the U.S., and the languages of these countries. Understanding how governments were formed and how the economy works will help to prepare these students for life after school.

Spanish, English, and history all deal with a great portion of man's past. With knowledge of our past, we can deal with the present and control the future.

Oh, Jessica Martinez seems to have spotted a target as Penniva Isbell looks on.

Steven Tidwell studies the terms "siesta" in Spanish class.
