

The Look of 1993---ENOUGH SAID!!!

A shorts policy, auto mechanics, enthusiastic spirit, stage band and TAAS for sophomores were elements of the 1992-93 school year which signaled changes awaiting students at Wink.

A program called PALs (Peer Assisted Learning) involved six students who were selected by their peers to promote education, friendship, and problem solving.

Auto mechanics and small engine repair, taught by Gary Mosier, helped the students learn more about fixing engines and repairing cars.

Coach Beverley Smith, with her government study of the election process, organized the 1992 mock election, which allowed students to cast ballots for candidates Bush, Clinton, and Perot. Election night, Smith hosted a return party so students could see results as history was made.

The Student Council worked as a liason between the students and the school board to develop a policy allowing students to wear shorts.

The TAAS test was given to the sophomores as an Exit Level test for the first time.

Stage band also added enthusiasm this year by promoting spirit at the home basketball games.

This year's pep rallies were filled with more spirit and fast-paced with recorded contemporary music setting the tempo prior to the band playing.

This was also the year that the Wildcats' came back from an 0-9 season to clinch a play-off spot and the girls' basketball program, in its first season, played a JV schedule.

Another new accomplishment involved the Wildcat yearbook staff using two new Apple Macintosh computers to produce the yearbook and newspaper.

Seniors broke tradition by going to Ruidoso in March for their senior trip instead of waiting until two weeks before school was out to go to Six Flags.

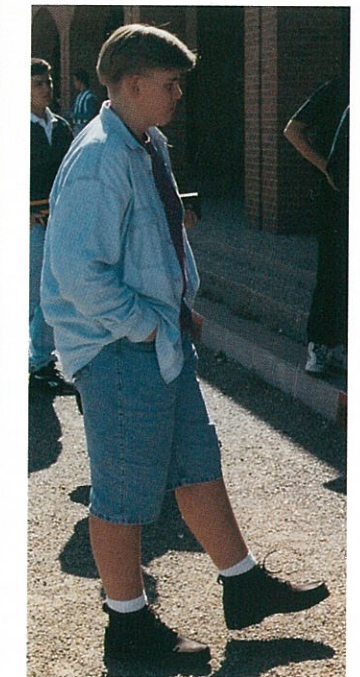

In January the Super Bowl caused excitement when the Dallas Cowboys defeated the Buffalo Bills 52-17.

It was a good year, one filled with positive changes. One we won't forget and that's ENOUGH SAID!!!

Mr. Gary Wolf and Mr. Tom Burns walk onto the gym floor as one of three nominees for "Homecoming" king and queen.

Merrick Brown chilled during lunch with his stylish shorts that are now legal to wear to school.

Varsity basketball player Carlton Gillette showed his spirit by having his head shaved with his number on it.

Geta Wilson, Theresa Jacquez, Ana Miranda, and Shannon Parham are the little girls of Student Council that don't want to grow-up because they are "Toys 'R' Us Kids."

The student body painted their faces and waved signs to support the volleyball girls during the area match.
