

students to keep perfect attendance and honor roll status. The Council distributed the Grr--zette, a weekly reminder of activities, in Monday morning assemblies. The Student of the Week also had something to look forward to besides a nice trophy, with a special orange and black parking spot at the front of the school. Wink beat Rankin 17-7 for the first time in eight years to clinch the district football championship. Cheerleaders built spirit at a nighttime 'glow in the dark' pep rally with black lights and neon accents. A new intercom system was put in the second semester that allowed teachers to have the convenience of a telephone. The PALS (Peer Assistance Leadership) tutored adults who wanted to get their GED by helping them to read, write, and provided a day care for those adults who could not find a babysitter. The PALS presented a play for students called "Rock Bottom," and assisted in the Showcase of Adolescent Strategies, hosting twelve area schools in an all-day workshop. Band members celebrated a third consecutive first division in marching, and traveled to Fiesta Texas and Schlitterbahn in the spring. The varsity basketball girls had an exciting season with their first year of district competition. A new group, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, met each week with twenty or more members sharing lunch time.

Elsewhere in the world, in one of the most shocking events of the century, cult leader David Koresh led his followers of men, women, and children to a fiery death after a 51-day stand-off near Waco. The Dallas Cowboys began their season 0-2 but came to life with the return of hold-out Emmitt Smith in game three. Cowboy fans had everything to cheer about as the Cowboys went on to win the NFC championship, and a second consecutive Super Bowl over Buffalo. Smith, with his new multi-million dollar contract, was named NFC player of the year and the Most Valuable Player in the Super Bowl.

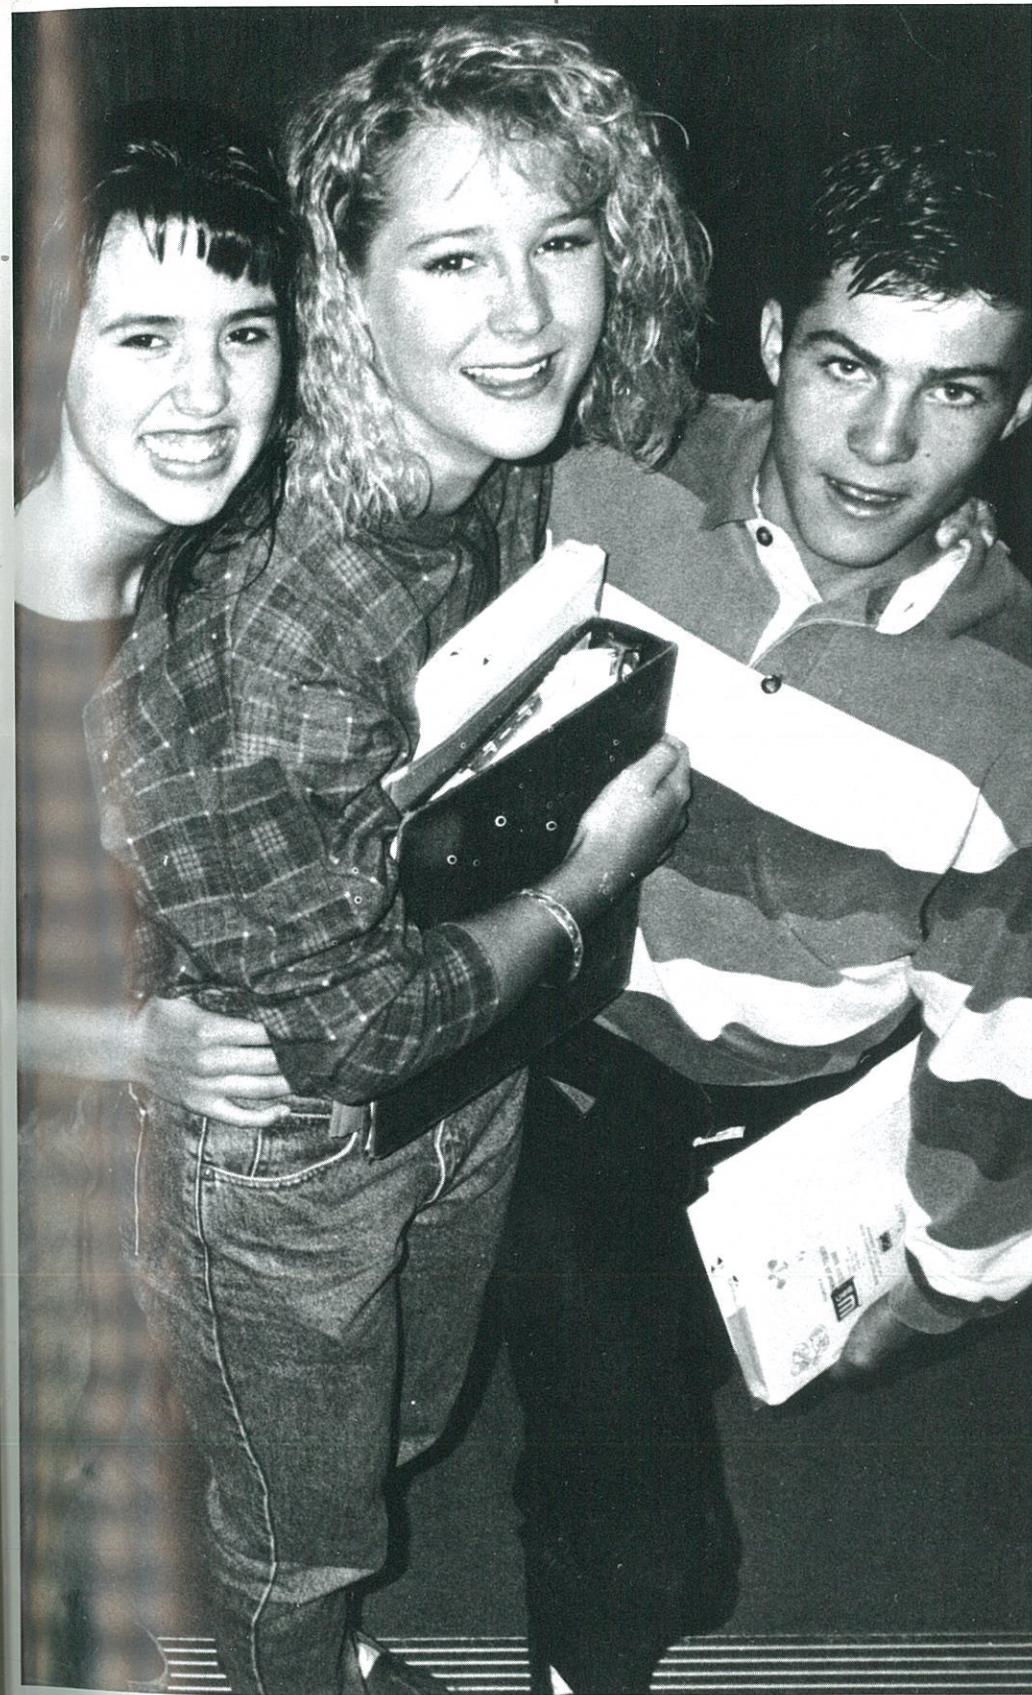

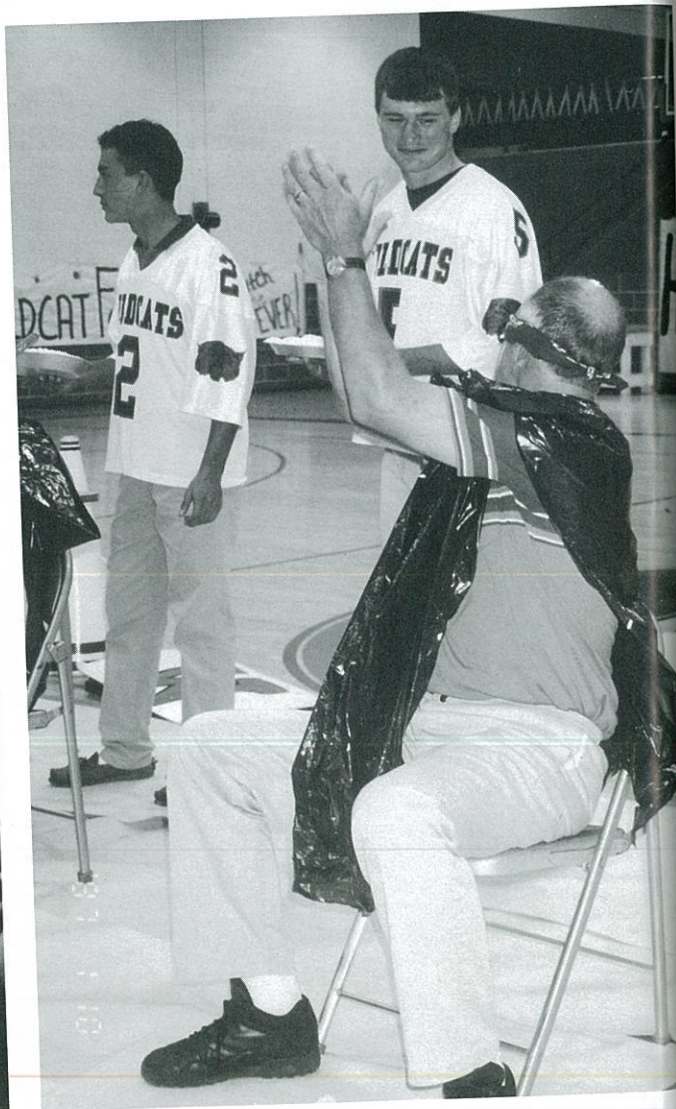

.....
Seventh graders Timothy Martin, Michael Berta, and eighth grader Omar Armendariz paint their faces to spread spirit for Homecoming.

Junior Sharon Bryant gives senior Carlos Lopez some helpful hints on styling his hair.

Band director Tom Burns cheers for the Wildcats, but eventually he doesn't know what's in store for him.

Freshman Ashley Weaver and seniors Brande Scott and Stephen Tidwell take time to pose for a picture between classes.

Coach Roger Martin shows some athletic form as he races to class.

Sophomore David Bickle gets ready to slice Karina Carrillo's neck if she does not smile.