

Something to Crow About

The JV track team may have been the envy of many varsity coaches because it consisted of fourteen talented athletes. The team scored a respectable number of points at every meet they entered even though they were usually matched up with athletes from Class AA or AAA schools. The team finished off the year by coming in ahead of the Rankin JV to win the district championship.

Freshman Joe Renteria takes flight in the triple jump.

Casie Carlton is just about to run his leg of the sprint relay.

Alan Watts hustles as he comes around the corner in his long-distance run.

Making a Move

The girls' varsity track team, coached by Stacey Garner, consisted of only ten girls. Though small in number, they were big in heart. They worked hard to achieve the best marks and times possible. The effort certainly paid off for Amanda Henderson who advanced to regional in the 100-meter dash as a freshman. Senior, Karina Carrillo ended her high school track career in style by qualifying for regional in the discus. Everyone but Karina will return next season, so the future looks bright for girls' track.
