

The string of years the Wink Wildcats have reached post-season play stands at five, and not coincidentally this number matches the number of years the team has been under the leadership of Coach Sam Scott.

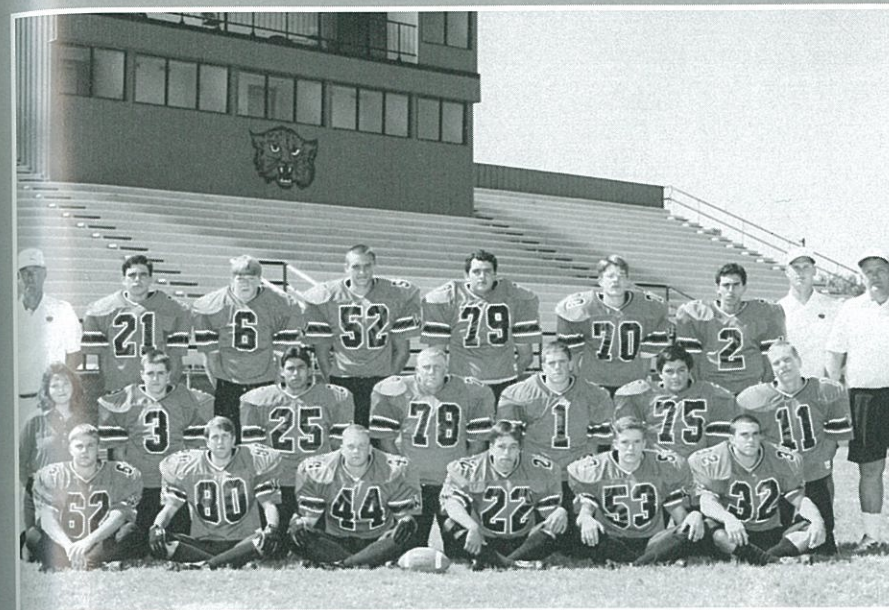

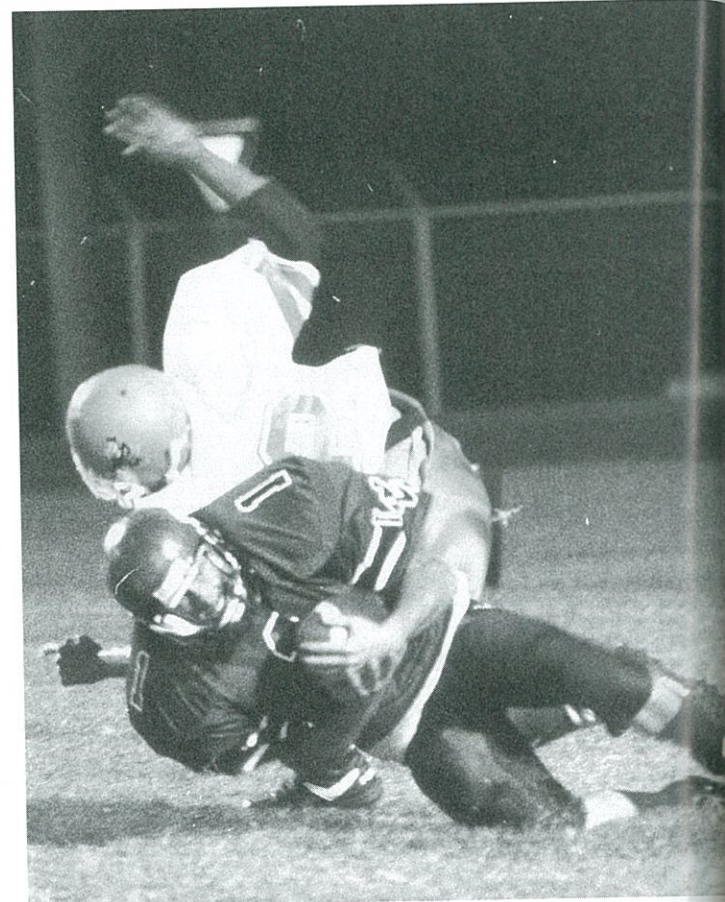

During this span, the team and fans alike have come to expect a higher level of play because of the physical and emotional discipline required by Scott. Individual players may attain lofty levels of personal achievement, but teamwork forms the foundation of a Scott coached team.

During a 'rebuilding year', when the inexperienced outnumber the experienced, the concept of teamwork plays an even more important role.

In a pep rally speech toward the end of the season, Coach Scott quoted a release from the football office of Rice University, which compares a successful football team to an iceberg.

"You see the starting eleven, but underneath lie the bench players-the strong, wide base. When the game is over; when the season ends and all the fans and sports writers are talking about the top of the iceberg, the players will know that the real winner is the team," said Scott. "It takes the whole iceberg, especially the base. The men on the bench build character and make the team a lasting winner."

Calvin Baker ended his football career in true Wildcat fashion by catching 3 passes (6 for touchdowns) on offense and making seven interceptions (one for 9 yard touchdown) on defense. This stellar season resulted in Calvin being named to the Class IA All-State Team.
