

From August through May, students often see more of the high school campus than their own bedrooms. School truly becomes -
Home Away from

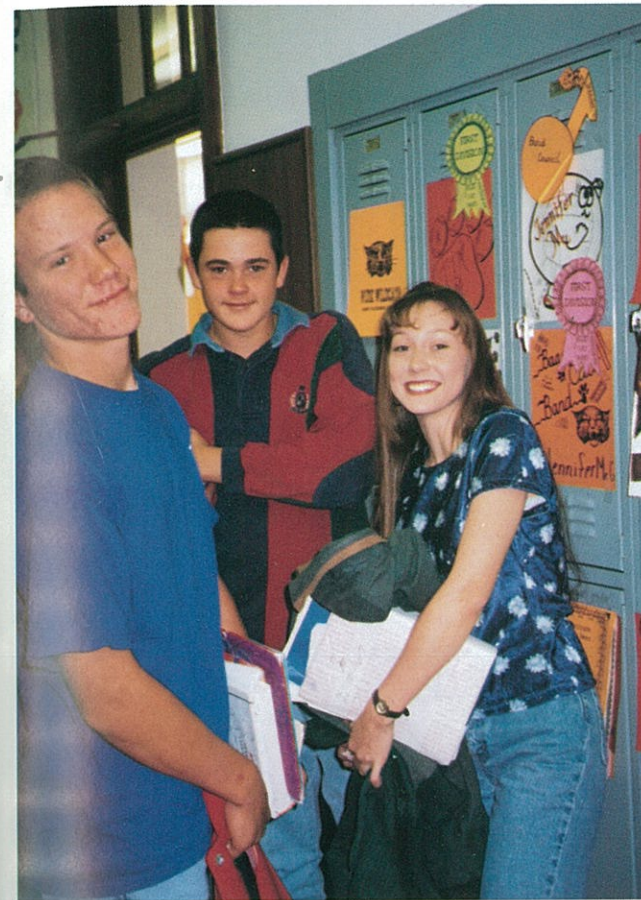

Sophomore Casie Slaughter is reminded each time she opens her locker that her 'dreams can come true.'

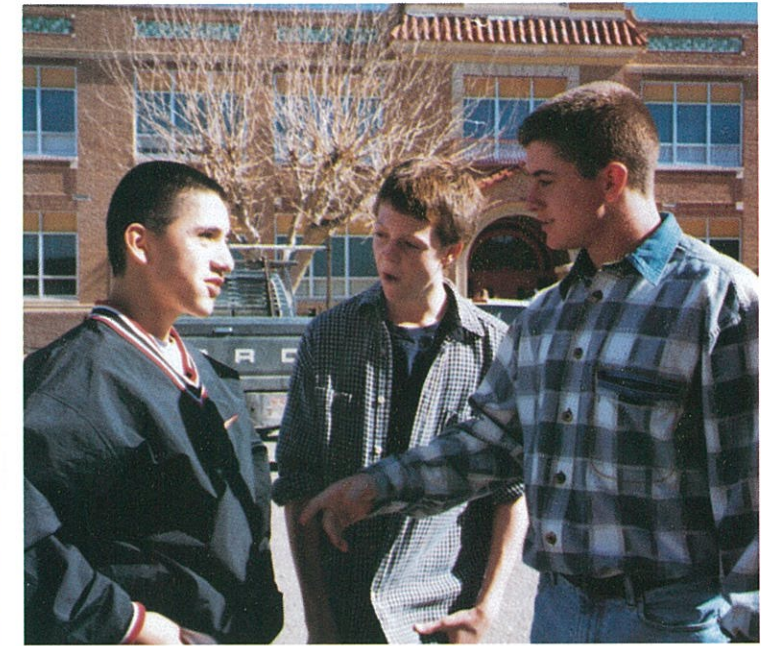

Twila McKee and Brandi Frie share a few more moments of conversation before heading to sixth period class.

Even though loaded down with homework, Justin Hamm, Tim Martin and Jennifer McGehee take their busy schedules right in stride.

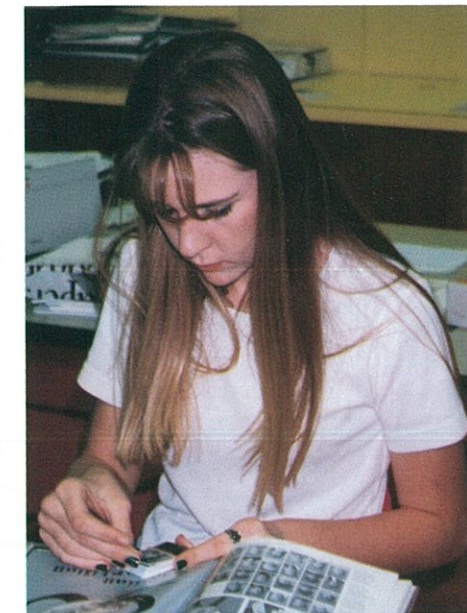

Eighth graders Marco Enriquez and Ben McGehee seem to appreciate any advice senior Sheldon Claborn might be offering.

Friday afternoon study hall allows a little time for freshman Patrick Voyles and junior Thomas Gonzales to challenge each other in a game of chess. Casey Williams uses the time to browse through magazines.

There was no rest for the seniors on the Friday before prom. Freddy Tavarez decorates diligently in order to earn the last 10 points needed to qualify for the Senior Trip.

Work on the yearbook begins the first day of school and ends on the last day of the school year. Amy Hawkins spends her time identifying and labeling class pictures.

Pat Gray plasters his locker with clippings to let any Aggie or Red Raider supporters know the UT Longhorns walk the walk.

H
O
M
E