

Larry and Sandy McCallister see their daughters, Mandi and Marci, off to the regional volleyball tournament. The McCallisters became very familiar with the route to Austin, as the twins competed at the state level not only in volleyball, but also in cross-ex debate and UIL literary.

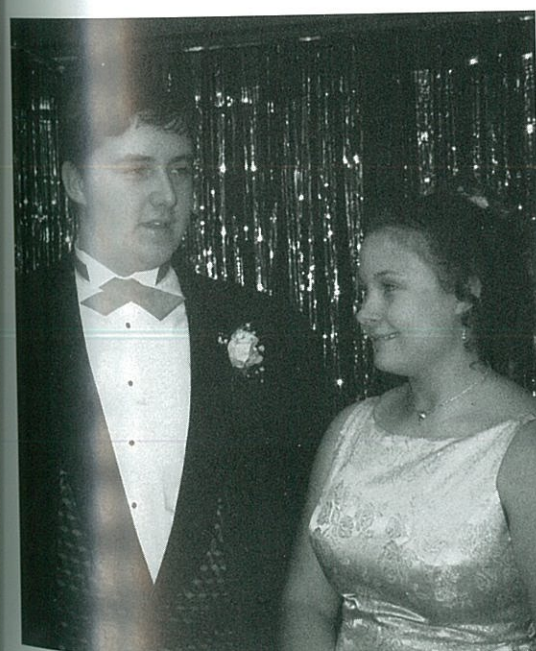

Student council members Lisa Jacquez and Renee Compton participate in the council's Halloween safety program for elementary students.

The Baad Cat Band livens up the festivities at a Friday night football game.

Just like in athletic competition, to be successful in UIL literary events, students have to put in hours of dedicated practice. This dedication paid off when Wink placed third at the McCarron Invitational in January. Pictured are: Kelsey Brown, Marci and Mandi McCallister, Ashli Abila, Dana McVay, Kathie Shirey, Lonnie Lovell, David Gilbreath, Casie McCallister, Derrick York, Tim Martin and Kevin Benham. (Derrick York holds the team spelling trophy won there.)

Junior Steaven Grubbs and sophomore Kathie Shirey look forward to a night of glitter, glamour and dancing at the annual Junior/Senior Prom.

The organizations and activities of a school are the foundations of that school's history and traditions. At Wink High School our organizations and activities offer students a variety of ways to increase their participation in school life outside of the classroom. Students often have the opportunity to travel around the state to conventions and competitions. With this travel and experience, students acquire a new awareness of the world around them, and learn historical and cultural aspects of many different things and places. Extracurricular activities and organizations, such as UIL, band and student council, provide a school sponsored form of doing what our we love best - having fun while learning the fundamentals for having a successful life.
