Can-do Attitudes Teach Success

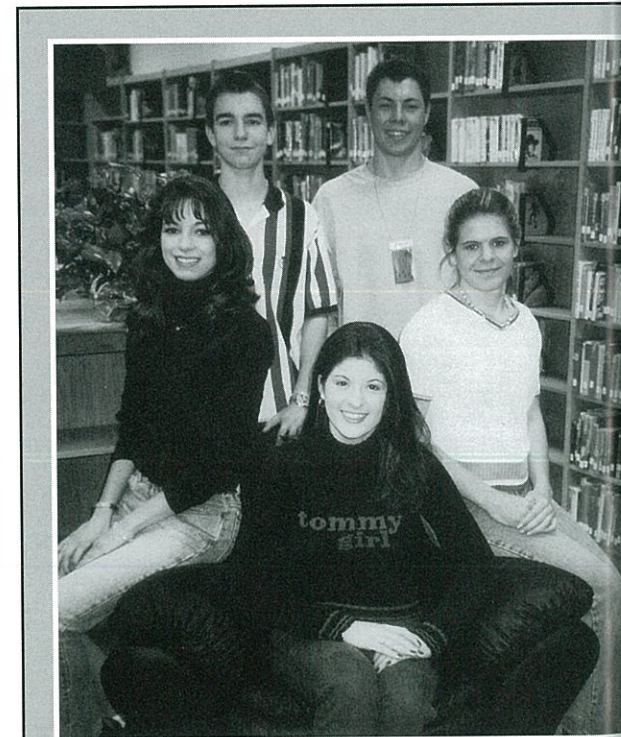

Student Council members work throughout the year to help make our school a better place. The ability of these members to work together while fulfilling their council duties (that might include anything from encouraging Wildcat competitors to informing the student body of environmental issues) proves that 'can-do attitudes teach success'.

As chairman of the spirit committee, Patrick Voyles must stay alert to the activities and events that the student body is participating in throughout the school year. He must regularly meet with his committee and supply them with ideas that will help 'can-do' attitudes grow.

Council members Kelli Benham, April Underwood, Jessica Ancira, Dessie York, Danni White and Patrick Voyles take a break for dinner at the Oasis while in Austin for the state convention.

April Underwood performs one of her duties as president of the student council she reads daily morning announcements.

The committee work done throughout the school year by council members resulted in each committee receiving an Outstanding Committee award. Since all three committees earned this recognition, the Wink Student Council captured a Sweepstakes Award.
