'Mayor' Betty Lou Dodd retires at end of year

The 2002-2003 school year marks the end of a twenty-five year teaching career at Wink High School for Betty Lou Dodd. During these years, Ms. Dodd has held several positions. For the majority of the time she has taught health, speech and physical education. But, at one time or another, she sponsored the student council, cheerleaders and various classes. She also coached high school UIL speaking events and junior high UIL spelling.

Just because her teaching days are over, Ms. Dodd does not plan a life of total leisure. She was elected mayor of Wink in May and plans to become a licensed minister of the Assemblies of God churches. Once that goal is reached, she will travel as an evangelist.

"I will miss working with students," Ms. Dodd said, "but God is so good that I plan to do church work as long as my health allows."

Betty Lou Dodd, a longtime fixture of Wink High School, will be greatly missed by students and her colleagues.
