

During lunch break, Cayla Slaughter admires fellow junior Jacque Wilkinson's new class ring.

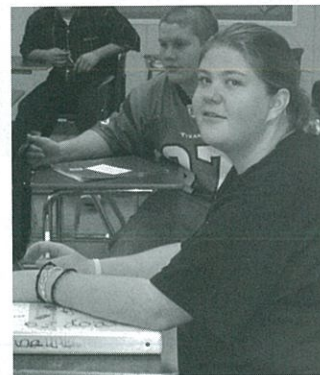

Freshman Kristen Bogess shades out drugs during Red Ribbon Week which was sponsored by the student council.

Student council members Raven Watson, Daniela Rivas and Michael Cox sort some of the stuffed animals collected by their organization. The furry friends were donated to area hospitals, law enforcement agencies and military veterans.

Freshman Daniel Ray (top) and senior Celsi Campbell (right) spend much of their school day completing assignments.

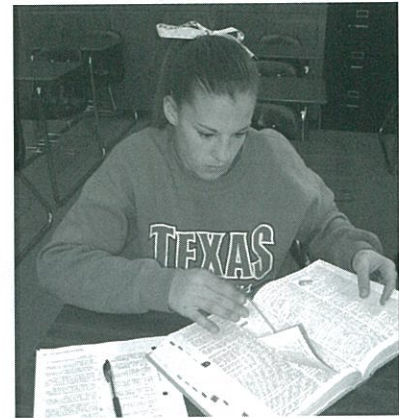

Juniors Cody Thomas and Lara Morton relax in the entry foyer just before the morning bell rings.

Study, competition, participation and socialization

Life revolves around school

Throughout the fall, football seems to control the life of varsity Wildcat Nelson Simpson. Here he participates in a spirit drill at Friday's pep rally.

Freshman Kanda Hildebrand concentrates on getting an assignment done in order to avoid homework.

From her big smile, it doesn't appear junior Megan Price minds spending part of her day in class.

Freshman Bristen Creech works at a volleyball concession to earn student council points

Senior Cecilia Mendez is ready to perform her UIL voice solo. She received a Division I for her efforts.