

LOOK LISTEN LEARN

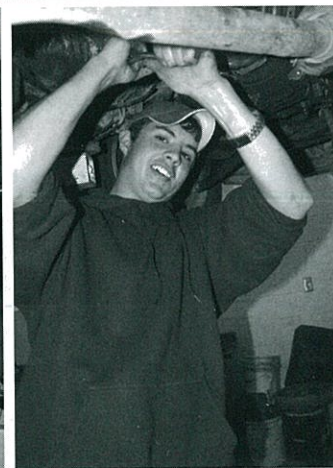

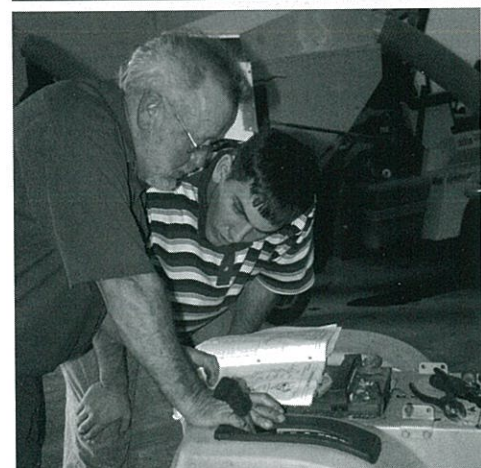

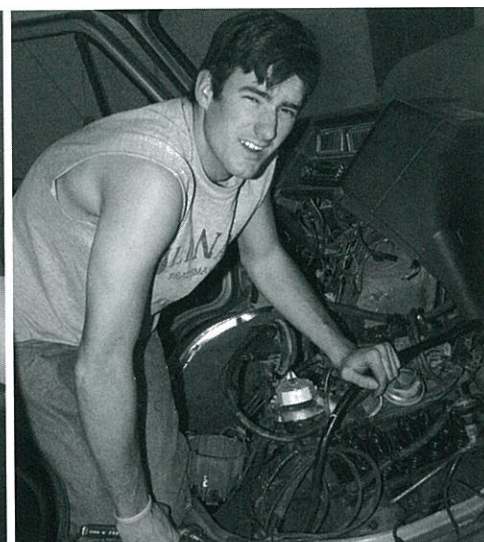

Students have fun all over campus. From science labs to cooking class, there is never a dull moment thanks to a wide variety of activities constantly going on. Whether it's carnations on Valentine's Day fund raiser, special class assignments, or even projects in tech classes, students are caught having an enjoyable and educational time.

Journalism students Whitney Abila, Jacque Carrasco, Anna Rivas, Kayla Ward and Catrina Rich, sort through pictures for the yearbook.

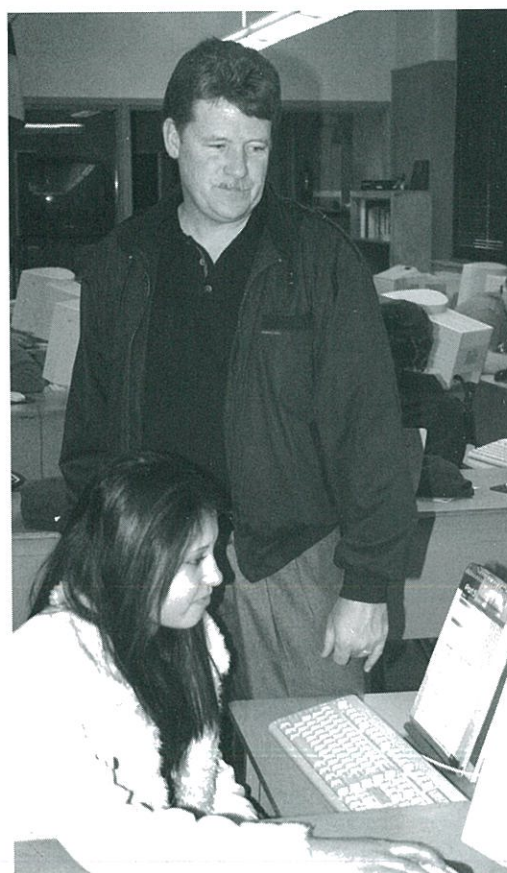

Justin Cole, Sarah Jones, Kendra Kerley, Jessica Quiroz and Stormy Harbin conduct a penny lab in biology.

Lyndsey Wolf, Jacque Wilkinson and Kristen Boggess admire thiera Medieval castle project they completed for Ms. Bette Lee Drake's world history class.

Clockwise from right: William Wilkinson works at a wood lathe in Mr. Danny Thomas's woodworking class; John Paul Jones works on an engine in auto tech; Dominick Chaves learns by doing when it comes to vehicle maintenance; Coty Carroll and Mr. John McKay consult an owner's manual before tackling a lawn mower repair job.

Coach Charles Stodghill helps check on Celia Chavez's progress during a computer class.

Junior, Ashely Sellers enjoys a microwave cooking lesson in Mrs. Vonda Warren's class.

Seniors Matt Jones and Dustin Erskine sort through highly anticipated carnations on Valentine's Day.

