Bad Cat Band makes huge strides toward excellence during marching season

Freshman Daniella Lara displays perfect form while blasting away on her horn.

Under the Friday night lights, senior drum major Amanda Plunkett keeps the band headed in the right direction.

Clockwise from top: Freshman Michael McCrohan does his part in the tuba trio; the band presents a great performance on a Friday night; junior Stormy Harbin plays her piccolo solo; senior Rosana Polanco keeps to the beat of the band's drumline; freshman Marissa Armendariz and senior Lara Morton add to the band's loud sound with flute and clarinet.

Featured soloist, freshman Jacob Jones, performs his rendition of I Saw the Light.

Senior Cayla Slaughter, along with freshmen Trinity Walker and Erin Stodghill, gets warmed up prior to a halftime performance.

It's not all play! The band watches intently as the Wildcats march downfield toward victory.

Freshmen Trinity Walker and Cristal Mendoza practice their notes just before halftime.

The Bad Cat Band takes to the field on its way to a Division II rating at the UIL Regional Marching Contest.
