Clockwise from Bottom Left:

Melissa Smith practices good form while running the 100 meter dash.

Madison McGuire puts forth an extra burst of energy to lift herself over the high jump bar.

Troy Miller lunges into action while pole vaulting.

Jordan Sonnier and Riley Richardson relax and scope out the competition before their race.

This is the feeling of winning a race by a tenth of a second. This is the feeling of putting your feet into blocks and exploding at the sound of the opening gun. This is the feeling of lunging yourself at your teammate to get the baton handed off in just enough time. This is the feeling of not feeling your legs when you cross the finish line. This is the feeling of jumping higher or farther. This is the feeling of throwing more extensively. This is the feeling of running faster. This is the feeling of...
